Constructing your Crystal Grid

This is the 3 x 3 grid on which I base my methodology.

This arrangement of numbers includes what is referred to as a “magic square”. The magic derives from the fact that numbers arranged in a square of equal sides all add up to the same total, going up, down, sideways and diagonally.

This is the perfect foundation to create alignment, unity and balance in your life.

It isn't necessary to draw a grid with lines and numbers.

When activating your grid, place your stones onto the grid in the exact sequence on your list starting at 1. As you place each stone, state out loud or silently the quality or characteristic that stone represents. Continue in numerical order with each additional stone, on the corresponding number, until you have completed all 9. If you accidentally go out of order or place a stone incorrectly you must start over at 1 once again.

3	5	7
8	1	6

Activating your Crystal Grid

This particular “Magic Square” is named after the planet Saturn.

Saturday is also named after the planet Saturn. Each planetary day begins at sunrise and ends at the next day's sunrise. For example, Sunrise on Saturday is the beginning of the day of Saturn. Before sunrise on Saturday, you are still under the day of Venus.

There is also the “Hour of Saturn”, based on the planetary hours, an ancient system in which each of the seven traditional planets is given rulership over one day and various parts of each day.

It is best to activate your grid on the day of Saturn, and during the hour of Saturn, to harness the maximum power from your grid and gain your desired results.

As the day and hour approach before activation, clear your mind and focus on what you are creating.

Then, follow the instructions on “Constructing Your Crystal Grid”. Complete your activation before the hour of Saturn is over.

How to determine the hour of Saturn

I use a phone app called “Hours” by Sirius Lab Ltd.

Another great resource is: <http://www.lunarium.co.uk/settings.jsp>.

Change the preferred settings to USA, Salt Lake City, UT and desired date/time format. The hour of Saturn is generally designated by this symbol:
